

GENERALITIES.

The Steamer in Delaware Bay. The vessel lost near Hopewell Light, on the 27th ult. was the H. E. Spencer, of Philadelphia, loaded with coal. She burst open, and is a total loss.

The schooner Lydia A. May, of Philadelphia, which went ashore on the flats, about three miles from Millspan creek, was loaded with coal from Georgetown, D. C., bound for Hudson, N. Y. She is a total loss. Her crew and Captain Stevenson were rescued on Saturday night by Captain M. Monro, of Millport, after having been in the rigging twenty-four hours.

Cady Stanton's Future Programme. "It pleases us," says the New York Tribune, "to find Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton announcing the death of her husband, and that she now proposes to speak and write in the future as in the past—not, however, at appointed times and seasons, but just when the spirit moves her." She does not say what "spirit," and we suppose that in using this word she means by it no more than her personal inclination.

Death of an Old African Chief. Late Cape Town, South Africa, papers announce the death of an old African chief, Moseh, who for fifty years had been the wise and brave ruler of the Basutos, one of the most powerful of the aboriginal nations of Southern Africa. He began his career as a warrior about 1824, and was engaged in many hard-fought battles with native chiefs, with whom he was generally victorious, and finally with the English, who continually encroached upon the territory.

Her Own Avenger. This is the remarkable story of Celestine Fejervary, a wealthy young lady of Davenport, Iowa. Recently a story was circulated affecting her chastity. She waited until some responsible person could be proved to have helped to circulate it. This person proved to be a man named Mayor Bewick. He had thoughtlessly told the story as it came to him, and told it as deploring it if it were true. Miss Fejervary promptly sued him. She was cleared of the slander during the progress of the trial, but because it was found that Mayor Bewick had no thought of vile intent in what he said, the verdict was in his favor.

Another Political Scandal in France. A recent letter from Paris contains the following:—General Fleury is daily expected in Paris. There is not a word of truth in the statement that he is in bad odor at the Russian Court. On the contrary, the relations between the two Cabinets have been cemented by his efforts, and the Emperor Nicholas as well as the French Emperor, feel most grateful to him for what he has accomplished. This will not prevent the General from being exposed to rather an unpleasant order on his arrival here.

JUDICIAL COURTESIES. An Illinois Judge Calls Another Judge a Fool, and gets Knocked Down in Consequence. The Poet (Hill) Transcript gives the following specimen of judicial courtesy:—Judges Puterbaugh and Wead had a misunderstanding early yesterday afternoon, which resulted in the striking of the latter by the former. It happened in this way: Several persons were standing on the sidewalk in front of Herron's marble clock, talking over the case of Underhill against the city, and discussing the large amount of money relating to more to this case than any other. Judge Puterbaugh was in the group and Judge Wead soon after joined it, and addressing himself to Judge Puterbaugh, and speaking of these matters, mentioned (in which Wead is an attorney), said that he had bet Underhill a horse that he would win the case. "And I'll bet you a horse, too, Judge, that I win it."

TERRIBLE. Three Children Instantly Killed by Lightning. The Manterville (Minn.) Express of May 31, says: Of all the late accounts of the loss of life by accident, none so recent, none so sudden, and none so terrible as that which happened in our own county on Saturday evening of last week, in the township of Ripley. The circumstances of the case were given us by a friend who lives not far from the place, and were substantially as follows:—The man's name is Peter De Sent. He lives in the east part of the township of Ripley; has a wife and family of four children, a daughter married, and three boys, of the ages of fourteen, ten, and eight respectively. It seems that the married daughter and her husband were at her home on the Saturday evening referred to. The three young boys retired early that evening, and were all occupying one bed temporarily arranged for the purpose of a storm, and joining that in which the parents were still sitting up and alone, occupied in conversation in relation to their children. But a few moments after the storm came, and almost the first thunder that was heard, and the first bolt that fell in the vicinity, struck the chimney of Mr. Sent's house, and the currents of the powerful destroyer were fashed all over the building. Mr. Sent sprang from his seat immediately, with the exclamation, "My children are all dead!" It was indeed fearfully true! The two younger children were killed instantly. The oldest boy showed little signs of life when the parents reached the bedside—but one gasp, and he, too, was lifeless. The bed caught fire, and the children one by one were removed before the flames could be extinguished.

Fort Sumter To-day. A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser writes from Charleston:—But no Northern man pauses to look long at anything else in Charleston until he has been down the harbor and clambered over the walls of Fort Sumter. The experience will never be so valuable again as now, because the Government has at last begun to attempt to restore the historical old ruin to up and down lines and a condition of usefulness. There are several ways of making the excursion; but the pleasantest of all is by a yacht which goes down twice a day, not the least attractive feature of this method being that the captain and crew are a Green and so able to explain matters to a mixed company with a freedom from embarrassment which neither Yankee nor ex-Rebel could command.

RUSSIAN ROYALTY. The Grand Duke Alexis to Visit the United States—What Humber of Him He Is—At the Post Office in Times of Peace. It is announced that the Grand Duke Alexis, of Russia, third son of the Emperor Alexander II, is to visit the United States early in 1871. The Grand Duke is a little over twenty years of age, and is described as being remarkably handsome. The coming of the Russian prince to the United States is to be appreciated when it is known that it will be the first time the son of a Russian Emperor has visited a republic. He will probably reach America as early in 1871 as possible, in order that he may visit Congress while in session. He will attend that body in full uniform, and be presented by the Russian Minister, also in uniform, for the Grand Duke is to come as the immediate representative of his royal father the Emperor. Mr. A. T. Stewart, of New York, has offered to entertain the Grand Duke during his stay in New York. The following well-authenticated anecdote shows that a royal scion may be every inch a man, if he chooses to be:—The young Grand Duke belongs to the Russian navy, and a year ago, when acting as midshipman, the vessel to which he was assigned was wrecked off the coast of Denmark. This vessel, by the way, was the Alexandre Nevski, a frigate built in New York. When it became certain that the ship could not be saved the Admiral ordered the men to the life-boats, and wishing to insure the safety of the royal midshipman, ordered him to take command of the first boat. The Grand Duke was on duty at the time, and he was the first to jump into the boat. He was the only one who refused to obey it. "My duty," he said, "is here, and I must be the last to leave the ship. Do you know, Admiral, I determined that I would not leave the ship until I was under my command, and dare you refuse to obey my order?" "I will obey," the young man answered firmly, "any orders you may choose to give me, except the one to leave the ship, where it is my duty now to remain." As it was impossible to enforce obedience under such circumstances, the Admiral was obliged to yield the point, and the Emperor's son was the last to leave the ship. As soon as a landing was effected, and preparations were made to disembark on shore, the Admiral ordered the brave young midshipman to be placed under arrest for disobedience of orders. Having done so, he detached to the Emperor an account of the whole affair. To this the Emperor at once replied:—"I approve your having put the midshipman Alexis under arrest for disobedience, and I bless my boy for having done so."

presence of such frightful evils and such monstrous injustice. Unfortunately, France is far from possessing that pre-eminence which you attribute to it. Social reformers are always prone to believe that other countries are in advance of their own. Unhappily, the difference is too frequently more apparent than real. You bestow in many passages praises upon England to which it has no right upon the subject in question, while again those in England who uphold the cause of women frequently insist that their condition is much better in France. Unhappily, both are mistaken. As to the beginning which has been made here with a view to the regulation of prostitution, and which it is being attempted to extend to other countries, it is to be condemned without appeal. The attempt has excited here a very serious opposition. An association of women, some of whom are highly distinguished, has been formed to excite public opinion against this deplorable system. They are well seconded by men, and there is reason to hope that not only will the system be not pushed further, but that what has been done will necessarily be undone. (Signed) JOHN STUART MILL.

HOVER'S Celebrated Patent Sofa Bedstead. Is now being made and sold in large numbers both in France and England. Can be had only at the manufacture. This piece of furniture is in the form of a handsome FALLOU SOFA, yet in one minute, without unsewing or detaching it, it is extended into a beautiful FRENCH BEDSTEAD, with Spring Hair Mattress and coverlet. It is the most convenient and comfortable sofa ever made, and is impossible for it to get out of order. This Sofa Bedstead requires no props, hinges, feet, or ropes to support it, when extended, as all other sofa beds and lounges have, which are all very unsafe and liable to get out of order, but the Bedstead is formed by simply turning out the ends or closing them, when the Sofa is wanted. The price is about the same as a lounge. An examination of this novel invention is solicited.
